THE ELECTIONS

Edmonton voters turned out to the polling booths on Monday a good deal better than they did to the campaign meetings last week. While the vote was smaller than was to be expected from the small audiences who greeted the candidates.

Mayor Bury's re-election by a vote which is to be construed as a fine testimony of respect and confidence from the electors. His leading opponent also was given a measure of support in which he has cause to feel gratified. His decision was decisive, both received an expression of esteem from the electorate of which they may well be proud.

The burgesses showed discretion in voting on the municipal budget, the significant that the bylaws which carried were those providing money for paving and permitting street grading and graveling as a local improvement. The tax payers, it is to be inferred, are by no means disposed to be freed from the matter of expenditure, but they do want the streets put in condition. They also showed a willingness to grant partial exemption to industries, to such an extent that this bylaw only failed if the rejected ballots are counted in the total vote.

The vote on the proposal to abandon proportional voting was about what was to be expected in the light of the experience the voters have had with that system.

IS THERE A WESTERN "ROUTE"?

According to the Vancouver Province the western route is not functioning at all as it would be expected to function in a year when Alberta has an abnormally large amount of wheat to move. It is the active way that people in Alberta have supposed it to be functioning. Whereas it was expected that 20,000,000 bushels of wheat would leave that port during December, less than 1,000,000 bushels were loaded during the first quarter of the month.

There was the Province stated on Dec. 8th, not enough wheat in the elevators there to load the ships and the proposed route was not functioning. There were ships in port whose particular grain cargoes had not arrived. There were vessels en route for which no cargo was available in sight. For these conditions the railways denied that they were to blame. The operators of the public house denied that they were to blame. With various reasons assigned for the trouble, "no person interested would make a public declaration."

That something was seriously "the trouble" is apparent from the following comment. In so far as this port itself is concerned, shipping men point out, the situation is that a great volume of business which was promised for this month now gives no promise of realization. A few years ago, with but one elevator, and that of 1,500,000 bushels capacity, and two available grain berths for ships, it was shipping four to seven million bushels of wheat monthly, and handled approximately 55,000,000 bushels in the season. Today the elevator capacity is 7,500,000 bushels, there are grain berths for at least nine ships at one time; there is larger railway yardage accommodation. So far this season the monthly record of No. 1 elevator during the 1923-24 season has not been equalled by the total output of all the elevators now lining the waterfront.

There was the Province states, a prospect that some of the grain vessels would move to Portland, and there fill up with United States wheat.

All which seems to mean that the western route is plugged, and nobody knows why, or will say why. Meanwhile, Alberta wheat is going east and paying the extra cost of haulage over the long railway route, to take ports where are storm-bound and will be ice-bound any day; or is lying in Alberta granaries and elevators with carrying charges piling up against the owners.

This appears to be a case calling plainly for investigation by the Dominion Department of Trade and Commerce. If the Dominion Government has invested millions of dollars in Vancouver terminals, there are these elevators stand empty in December, while ships sent to that port to load wheat have to go to Portland and load United States wheat. It is a fact that the Canadian tax-payers were told the facts and made aware of the cause of this ridiculous situation.

The Mental Golfer

By EDGAR E. GUEST

The winter golfer sits and dreams of those who play the links. Of splendid scores, of threes and fours. And never on sight, or in mind, of the course in days and snow. And cold the wind and keen. But on goes he from tee to tee. Through fairways verdant green. And peace is his and joy complete. As mental golf he plays. For straight and true his long shots are. Throughout the winter days.

And sitting, dreaming by his fire. His drives are swift and true. Nor put nor trap disturbs his man. And of golf he takes but two. And there's never a book and never a caddy. And never a shot that's topped. In a winter dream, the ball it seems. At the cup is always dropped.

He never lifts for a penalty stroke. From the green he never takes. Never loses a match as he plays from scratch. In his wonderful winter dream.

So there at his fireplace he sits. His mental game till spring. He dreams until he gets back on the tee. With the same old awkward swing, a different dream.

Six Rules

By DR. FRANK CRANE

I had a talk with a lawyer the other day and he said he had run across six maxims that impressed him as important. They are:

Think big. Talk less. Laugh much. Love much. Leave nothing to chance. Pay cash, and he has found these things important in his business.

In the first place, a man must think big. It is the world is done without him. You have to think big things. If you think big actions your actions are likely to be big. Don't think too big of yourself, but think highly of your job.

Think big. A man who says nothing is always given credit for what he doesn't know. The Bible says that a fool's mouth is his ruin, and a simple man is soon reckoned without a tool is counted when he holds his peace.

Love much. Nothing that amounts to anything in this world is done without love. You have to love a man or a dog or a job before you are able to criticize intelligently.

Laugh easily. A sense of humor gets over the most difficult things. Things that are laughed away that can't be got rid of in any other way.

Work hard. The man who loves his work is fortunate, and the man who is contented to do his work is at work. He is able to go forward.

Pay cash. Don't owe anything until you have the money to pay for it. Don't owe anything until you have the money to pay for it.

Don't owe anything until you have the money to pay for it. Don't owe anything until you have the money to pay for it.

Don't owe anything until you have the money to pay for it. Don't owe anything until you have the money to pay for it.

Health and Diet Advice

Diet Specialist and Author of "The Fast Way to Health" Questions on Health and Diet Answered by Dr. McCoy, when addressed to care of The Edmonton Bulletin

DIABETES INSIPIDUS A distinguishing feature between these two disorders is the low specific gravity and the absence of sugar in the urine. In what is called Diabetes Insipidus, while with Diabetes Mellitus there is a large amount of sugar in the urine.

Any one notices the excretion of large amounts of urine and the absence of sugar in the urine. This is a sign of Diabetes Insipidus, and a desire for drinking water is usually present. It is a sign of Diabetes Insipidus, and a desire for drinking water is usually present.

Many people will put off going to the doctor because of what he might tell them. This is a mistake. A foolish patient, afraid of what he might find that the trouble can be easily corrected, or if more serious, a complete cure if treatment is started in time.

"Holy Candle" in Mexico Proves Bomb in Disguise

WORSHIPPERS ENDANGERED BY STRANGER

100,000 Visited Shrine of Virgin of Guadalupe During Day

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 12.—An attempt to explode a bomb disguised as a holy candle was made at the shrine of the Virgin of Guadalupe yesterday as many worshippers made their devotions on the annual national holiday devoted to her memory.

The dangerous nature of the candle was discovered before it was lit.

Police today were endeavoring to find a motive for the attempt. The explosion occurred during the day at the shrine of the Virgin, who, according to tradition, appeared almost four centuries ago. Many of the candles came from long distances because the Virgin is an international shrine to the Mexican Indians.

Police today were endeavoring to find a motive for the attempt. The explosion occurred during the day at the shrine of the Virgin, who, according to tradition, appeared almost four centuries ago. Many of the candles came from long distances because the Virgin is an international shrine to the Mexican Indians.

Through the day a constant stream of pilgrims marched through the church and past the shrine of the Virgin, carrying candles, kneeling and praying and singing hymns.

Through this worshipping crowd an unidentified man approached the altar. He carried with him what he said was a large unlighted candle. He handed this to a priest, saying, "Burn this for the Virgin."

The priest, however, noticed the unusual weight of the candle, turned it over to the police. They discovered that it was a covered bomb.

LORDS WEIGH PRAYER BOOK

LONDON, Dec. 12.—A full assembly, such as is usually seen in the upper house on great occasions, gathered in the House of Lords Monday at the opening of the three days' debate which will decide whether the revised prayer book will be accepted by parliament.

The Archbishop of Canterbury moved a resolution inviting the lords to declare that the revised prayer book, as presented to the House of Lords, was a desirable and necessary amendment to the existing prayer book.

If carried, a similar motion will be submitted in the commons on Thursday, as the measure cannot be presented for royal assent until adopted by both houses.

Canterbury's great plea was that the house should take the largest view, look at the world rather than the tree, and consider that might be the consequence in the country of the rejection of a united work by a united church.

TORONTO, Dec. 12.—All the main crops produced in Ontario with the exception of corn, clover and alfalfa, were decidedly above the average for the season, just closed, according to a special report issued by the Ontario department of agriculture. Spring grains were almost a bumper crop, while hay was slightly above the average. The potato crop was somewhat lighter than the average, due to the continued wet weather early in the season.

Wheat

The fall wheat yield was below the average on account of the winter-killing and the total crop was just short of 25,000,000 bushels, a decrease of nearly 1,000,000 bushels. The yield of the winter wheat of 1927 bushels per acre, gave a total yield of 18,000,000 bushels, a large increase over the previous year's crop.

The hay crop showed increase, the total yield for the province being estimated at 800,000 tons.

The clover made the corn harvest was responsible for the decrease in both the hay and clover and ensilage crops. The dry weather of the late summer caused the root crop to suffer.
